THE LANGHE

A CULINARY MOVEMENT

The Langhe, in the Piemonte region of northern Italy, offers visitors a rare combination of natural beauty, award-winning food and wine, and deeply-rooted cultural traditions. Recognized as a UNESCO World Heritage site in 2014, the Langhe is not only scenic, but it also represents centuries of winemaking and agriculture that continue to shape the region today.

Culinary enthusiasts are especially drawn to the Langhe for its extraordinary reputation. The food scene is driven by the Slow Food movement, which was founded in Bra, and focuses on tradition, sustainability, and high-quality, local ingredients. Because of this ethos, the Langhe boasts 12 Michelin-starred restaurants, including the three-starred Piazza Duomo and La Rei Natura by Michelangelo Mammoliti. The region also celebrates quintessential local dishes like Tajarin, a thin-cut egg pasta; Agnolotti del Plin, traditional, bite-sized pasta stuffed with roasted or braised meats; Vitello Tonnato; Robiola di Roccaverano, a fresh and delicate goat's milk cheese; and hazelnuts. Alba, at the heart of the region, is celebrated for its white truffles, drawing visitors each Autumn for truffle hunts, markets, and festivals centered around one of Italy's most prized ingredients.

VITICULTURE AND HISTORY

Wine is inseparable from the Langhe's identity, with Barolo (the "King of Wine") and Barbaresco standing among some of the most prestigious wines in the world. Made from the Nebbiolo grape, these wines are celebrated for their terroir, complexity, and aging potential. Visitors of the Langhe can tour family-run wineries, taste aged vintages in picturesque cellars, and explore historic sites like Castello di Grinzane Cavour—home to the Langhe Museum, Cavour family heirlooms, Enoteca Regionale Piemontese Cavour (one of the oldest wineries in Italy), and In Vigna, an open-air museum dedicated to the region's wine history.

The Langhe's rich cultural history is also shaped by the Medieval castles that rise above the hills. Landmarks like Castello di Serralunga d'Alba and Castello Comunale Falletti di Barolo, which once served as fortresses and noble residences, are now home to museums, wine enotecas, and exhibitions that tell the story of the region's blended political and agricultural past. Additionally, historic villages like La Morra, Neive, and Barbaresco serve as cultural destinations complete with Romanesque churches, stone towers, and panoramic piazzas.

FOUNDER STORY

Natalie and Chris Nagele fell in love with the Langhe 13 years ago. Drawn time and again to its beauty, history, culinary offerings, iconic wines, and people, they acquired Borgo Castellengo in 2023.

As founders of a software company built on the principle of putting people first, they now bring that same philosophy into a hyper-personal, luxurious experience for guests of Villa at Borgo Castellengo.

As thoughtful stewards of the land, Natalie and Chris are dedicated to the careful restoration of this historical property, guided by a long-term vision to help revive the magic of the surrounding area and support the local economy.

APPROACH TO HOSPITALITY

The Villa at Borgo Castellengo is guided by the philosophy of effortless luxury and a personal approach to hospitality. From the very beginning, every request is carefully considered and fulfilled by our dedicated team.

Upon arrival, guests will find a combination of their personal favorites and local products, including artisanal culinary staples, Barolo and Barbaresco wines, signature bath essentials, and more.

Our team also creates personalized itineraries, thoughtfully curated based on guest interests, and provides them with exclusive access to small, local purveyors, boutique wineries, and once-in-a-lifetime experiences.

At the Villa, we invite guests to embrace the Italian art of il dolce far niente—the sweetness of doing nothing—as every detail is considered on their behalf, allowing them to savor each moment.

RESTORATION

Over the past three years, the Villa at Borgo Castellengo has been impeccably transformed from a nineteenth-century farmhouse into a modern, luxury retreat. Every element—from the façade to the fixtures—has been carefully selected to celebrate local and regional Italian craftsmanship.

The Villa's exterior features original and meticulously restored Pietra di Langa, a stone traditionally used by farmers, and is now preserved as part of UNESCO's commitment to safeguarding the region's heritage. The first floor and exterior are paved with locally sourced and reclaimed Pietra di Luserna tiles, a prized and versatile natural resource, while the second floor showcases elegant oak flooring complemented by original and restored exposed chestnut beams.

Every interior detail reflects Piemonte artistry, from the custom solid oak kitchen cabinets crafted by Dami&Dami, to Nicolazzi bathroom fixtures, and bespoke interior doors and furnishings created by Tesio, a locally celebrated artisan.

ACCOMMODATIONS

Accommodating up to ten guests, each of the five beautifully appointed bedrooms features original chestnut beams, oak floors, and a private sun-drenched balcony—an ideal setting for a morning coffee or aperitivo. The generously sized rooms also offer European Grand King-sized beds with Altrenotti mattresses, luxurious linens, in-room mini bars and coffee makers, custom-designed wardrobes with safes, thoughtfully crafted desks, and spacious en-suites with walk-in showers, double vanities, locally produced Nicolazzi bathroom fixtures, Italian toiletries, heated floors, and more.
